The Bombay Gazette.

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 23, 1867.

WE have lately permitted two or three correspondents to discuss the affairs of the unfortunate Back Bay Company in our columns. The Engineers have been assailed, and somebody has endeavoured to defend them. The charges advanced against the Engineers have been those of wasteful expenditure in several branches of the works, and defective Engineering skill. In the attempt to prove the latter, one of the correspondents has particularized the works which were supposed to have been unskilfully designed. How far he has succeeded we will leave to the judgment of those who are conversant with the science of Engineering and who have manifested any interest in the progress of the works. Fortunately there are many at present in Bombay who can pronounce positively enough upon those portions of the Back Bay works which have been brought to public notice by our correspondents, and we may supp

LAYING OF THE FIRST STONE OF THE SASSOON MECHANICS' INSTITUTE AND MEMORIAL HALL.

The first stone of the Sassoon Mechanics' Institute and Memorial Hall, which is to be erected on the Esplanade, at a part close to Forbes Street (in the Fort), was laid on Thursday afternoon by His Excellency Sir Bartle Frere, before a large concourse of ladies and gentlemen. An awning was raised at the scene of the ceremony, over the ground occupied by the great body of the spectators,—for whom canopés and chairs were provided. In front there was a large dais, also covered by an awning; and here His Excellency stood during the proceedings, in company with the Hon'ble H. B. Ellis (Chairman of the Joint Committees of the Sassoon Memorial and Mechanics' Institute), Col. Barr, Mr. A. T. Crawford, and Mr. J. Firth (Honorary Secretary to the Mechanics' Institute.) Amongst the ladies present were Lady Frere, the Misses Frere, and Mrs. Sassoon; and amongst the gentlemen we saw His Excellency Sir Robert Napier and a number of the members of the Legislative Council. Accommodation was specially provided for the members of the present Mechanics' Institute (which is to be merged in the Institution founded by Mr. Sassoon). The scene was rendered lively by a fine display of flags; by the presence of a guard of honour of Native Infantry; by the strains of the Governor's Band; and by the appearance of the large crowd which was assembled to witness the interesting ceremony.

The proceedings began shortly after five o'clock, when, at the request of Mr. Ellis, Mr. J. Firth (Honorary Secretary to the Mechanics' Institute) read the following account of what had passed in reference to the proposed building:—To place before your Excellency a connected narrative of the proceedings which have led to the erection of the building now about to be commenced under your Excellency's auspices, it will be necessary to state that prior to any official correspondence, Colonel Barr, the then President of the Mechanics' Institution, was consulted by the late Mr. David Sassoon as to what would be the best and most appreciable object on which to expend a sum which he, Mr. Sassoon, was desirous to devote to the erection of some public building of general utility to his fellow-citizens. Colonel Barr naturally leant towards favouring the Institution of which he was then President, and suggested to Mr. Sassoon the advisability of erecting a building to be called the "David Sassoon Mechanics' Institute." In pursuance of that idea, on the 15th October 1863 the late venerable Mr. David Sassoon wrote to the Chief Secretary to Government saying:—"I have the honour to request that you will have the goodness to bring to the notice of His Excellency the Governor in Council my wish to place a sum of Rs. 60,000 in the hands of trustees, one being the President of the Mechanics' Institution, one or two to be named by Government, and two by myself, to be expended in the erection of a public building in Bombay to be devoted to the purposes of a Mechanics' Institute, a lecture room, and a general hall of assembly, and to submit to His Excellency in Council my earnest hope, that Government will, with its usual liberality, be pleased to aid the undertaking by granting an equal sum, and a site in a suitable locality on the Esplanade for the proposed building." On the 5th of the following month the Chief Secretary of the Bombay Government replied to the above letter saying:—"I am desired to communicate the cordial thanks of this Government for your munificent offer, and to inform you that the sanction of the Government of India will be solicited for its acceptance, on the conditions proposed." In the following November (1863) the venerable David Sassoon died, and on the 15th December of that year a public meeting (at which your Excellency graciously presided) was held at the Town Hall for the purpose of paying a tribute of respect to the memory of the late lamented David Sassoon. It was then resolved:—1. "That the public benefactions of the late David Sassoon, his efforts for the amelioration of his own race, and the high position which he occupied in public estimation, demand a tribute to his memory from the people of Bombay." II.—"That the most appropriate of tributes would be a statue placed in a hall, which is to be erected on the Esplanade for the use of the public." At the same meeting an influential Committee was appointed to obtain subscriptions to defray the cost of a statue, and it was resolved that any surplus should be devoted to the building fund. The result of that meeting was, that Rs. 34,000 were collected and placed to the credit of the "Sassoon Memorial Fund," and subsequently, in accordance with the said resolutions, the Committee commissioned the celebrated sculptor, Thomas Woolner, to execute a full length statue of the venerable David Sassoon. Photographs of the model have been sent out to Bombay, and, with some slight modifications, it has been approved. To facilitate the negociations with the sculptor a Sub-Committee was appointed in London consisting of Mr. S. D. Sassoon, Mr. Henry Lacon Anderson, and Mr. Cornfield, and under their authority the statue has been commenced by Mr. Woolner, who has signed an agreement for its completion; estimating the time required to be about eighteen months from December last. £1,200 have been placed in the London Sub-Committee's hands to meet the charges; and it is ascertained that when all further expenses are met, a surplus of at least Rs. 20,000 will be available from the collected public subscriptions for the purposes of the building. In February 1865, when the question of site was discussed, the Hon'ble Mr. Ellis (Chairman of the Sassoon Memorial Committee) wrote to the Chief Secretary to Government, stating that all the subscriptions in excess of the amount required for a statue would be devoted to the Sassoon Mechanics' Institute Building Fund, and therefore a building could be erected of more importance in size and general effect than was at first contemplated, and under those circumstances the Chairman solicited that a site on one of the main roads should be assigned to the "Sassoon Memorial." Consequent on the above request the present eligible site was allotted for the building; and a communication was received from Government, specifying the terms on which the Government of India have authorized the co-operation of the Bombay Government in view to the provision of a building for a Mechanics' Institute. The terms were: that the assistance to be rendered, including the value of the land to be assigned, should be limited to the amount equal to that of donations by private individuals. And it was further stated that as the site selected and approved contained about 1,433 square yards, it would be considered to represent at Rs. 25 per square yard a sum of Rs. 37,100, and the lease was promised to be granted for 999 years, subject to certain usual conditions. To expedite arrangements, Government in July last were further pleased to request that the Mechanics' Institution should be requested to nominate three members and the Sassoon Memorial Committee three others to act as a joint committee for the speedy prosecution of the work in which both bodies have a common interest. In accordance with the request of Government resolution, the Mechanics' Institution named three gentlemen to represent them, viz.:—Captain W. C. Barker, (subsequently at Captain Barker's entire request Colonel Barr was appointed in his place) Colonel Ballard, C.B., (subsequently A. F. Crawford, Esq., C. S.,) John Firth, Esq.; and the Sassoon Memorial Committee named the Hon'ble E. H. Ellis (President), A. D. Sassoon, Esq., H. Cooke, Esq., (Secretary.) The above names were then sent up for the information of the Bombay Government, stating also, that the Committee, as then constituted, had decided to ask Government to approve of the following gentlemen as trustees, into whose names the site granted by Government should be transferred:—1. The Collector of Bombay; 2. The President of the Mechanics' Institute (for the time being); 3. A. D. Sassoon, Esq., C. S. I.; and it was further decided that the building should be styled "The Sassoon Mechanics' Institute." The Government resolution on the above approved the nomination of the gentlemen named, and authorized the necessary legal transfer of the site. The design for the building has been prepared by Messrs. Scott, McClelland and Co., architects, and has been approved by Government, the estimated cost for the entire structure is reckoned at Rs. 1,80,000, but the design will admit of one portion being completed, leaving the other (the lecture hall) to be deferred should sufficient funds not be forthcoming. The design was intended, in the first instance, to meet in its entirety the object for which the venerable donor made his munificent gift. Unfortunately the rise in prices and other adverse circumstances will prevent our performing at once all that was first projected, but we look hopefully to happier times when we may confidently expect the general public to subsidize the good work commenced, so that we may complete that portion of the structure which will so effectually meet the want of Bombay, namely, a hall for public lectures, concerts, and other similar purposes. At this date the amount that will be at the Committee's disposal for building after providing for architect's fees, will probably be one lac and ten thousand:—

It has been further decided that the entire expenditure on account of building shall be controlled by the Government Architectural Executive Engineer in accordance with the orders of the Government of India for all similar works when Government contribute any funds.

Captain Finch, R. E., then laid the plans of the proposed building before His Excellency, and in explaining the design, spoke to the following effect:—The drawings now laid before your Excellency are the designs for the Mechanics' Institute, of which Messrs. Scott, McClelland & Co. are the architects. The general style of the architecture may be termed Gothic, the principal front, that facing Rampart Row, being an adaptation of the Venetian Gothic style and is highly ornamental. The interior decorations of the building, as may be seen, are also intended to be very rich. The building is divided into two separate portions by a handsome staircase. One of these is to be set apart for the museum, the other for the lecture hall, the first will be in two stories, the museum being on the lower, and a reading room on the upper floor, and in this floor a large opening will be left, from which the statue of the late Mr. Sassoon to be erected in the centre of the museum will be well seen. The lecture hall will be a spacious octagonal shaped room, 60 feet in diameter, with seats concentrically arranged for the students. The whole building is to be constructed of stone, and will, it is believed, from the beauty of the design and its favourable position on the Esplanade, have a very imposing appearance.

Mr. A. D. Sassoon then addressed His Excellency as follows:—

YOUR EXCELLENCY,—In requesting your Excellency to lay the first stone of this building, the circumstances under which I have the honour to do so are such as to awaken very peculiar feelings in my mind. I cannot forget that I stand here in the room of my father, now no more, with whom originated upwards of three years ago the proposal to erect a suitable building for the Mechanics' Institute which the generous and enlightened labours of the late Mr. Berkeley founded in Bombay and the hearty co-operation of his brother Mr. George Berkeley and many other gentlemen have greatly enlarged. Nor can I forget that the ceremony which I am now commissioned to request your Excellency to perform is invested with great and uncommon interest, as being not only one of the latest public acts in which your Excellency will take part before closing your long and illustrious career in India, but also the ceremony of laying the very first stone of that new Frere Town which by your Excellency's energy is to be created on the Esplanade, and which is to perpetuate your Excellency's name on its Western India. I think it must be gratifying to your Excellency that one of the very last duties you have kindly consented to perform is to lay the foundation stone of an institution which will help for many centuries to come to extend the great cause of education in this country which you have so much at heart, and which you have laboured so earnestly and so successfully to promote, among the people over whom you rule. Your admiration, Sir, of the affairs of Western India will be remembered for two things, the earnest zeal with which you have ever striven to push forward every work that would develop the material wealth of this country, and the still more earnest zeal with which you have striven to awaken a desire for knowledge and learning and high-mindedness as the true conditions of national glory. We see our harbours filling with ships of every clime; we see cotton bursting from around us, and introducing new industries and overturning or improving old; we see Railways spreading like a net work across the country carrying the arts of peace and civilization into regions of the densest barbarism, and among tribes who have not forgotten that they were born to be plunderers and robbers. But whatever of art and the applied sciences, India, under the liberal and paternal rule of Britain borrows from the West, she must also borrow the clear and intelligent heads, the strong arms, and protected industry of British workmen to carry out the work and instruct our ruder people; just as we have to borrow from her; warriors, statesmen, economists and administrators to give to the land the blessings of peace, and to teach its people in their long and new apprenticeship to freedom. It is for this class to whom India already owes so much, to whom with every year of peace we owe infinitely more, without whom no people will ever reach or maintain a supremacy among the nations, that the building which your Excellency is about to commence is, in the first instance as its name implies, mainly intended. Or rather, I should say, it is designed for all that large and increasing class of young and intelligent Englishmen, who bring their energy, experience and cultivated brain to Bombay, whether to enter on the guidance or practice of mechanical labour or into some of the subordinate departments of commercial life. It is for the sons of that large class of educated natives whose opportunities of instruction your Excellency has done so much to extend, and who, although not following the practice of mechanical arts, may yet employ their leisure in the study of useful branches of knowledge within these walls. And the day, Sir, is distant, but I hope, nay I feel certain, it is coming, when native artisans, eager for knowledge, will crowd the lecture halls and class rooms of this institution to study the great laws of mechanical philosophy, and generally to fit themselves for being better workmen and better citizens. That will be a proud day for England, and will perhaps repay her for the lives of all the precious sons she has sacrificed for India, when she sees, under her benign rule, not merely the creation, from among an acute but unskilled people, of a race of mechanics skilled in the methods of the West, but when she sees the mechanics of this country crowding in the thirsty pursuit of knowledge upon the footsteps of her own more intelligent and highly favoured working men. I think, Sir, that day lies in the future, and I therefore acknowledge with pride the prompt and generous support which your Excellency's Government and the Government of India gave to my late father's proposal to contribute Rs. 60,000 towards the erection of a Mechanics' Institute on condition of Government granting equal value. The amount so contributed has been increased by the balance of the sum subscribed by the public of Bombay to erect a memorial to my late father, and I cannot conceal the gratification it affords me to think that while his name is to be identified with this institute and his statue to be erected within its walls, the greater portion of the Memorial Fund will be applied to the extension and beautifying of the building and to the perfecting of the means of Education which it will provide. I am sure, Sir, had my father been spared to see the commencement of this building, he would have felt as I now feel, and as all the members of the Committee feel, that there was no hand more worthy to lay the foundation stone than that of Sir Bartle Frere. A career spent in noble well-doing like your Excellency's, in the promotion of every great and good work which will make the people of this country happier and better, and not the least in the anxious promotion of Universities and Schools, cannot be more fitly and nobly closed in India than by laying the foundation stone of a building which shall afford the means of instruction to the poorer classes of your own countrymen who come to these shores, and to every one, European or native, who desires to employ his leisure in refined amusement, or in the more severe study of literature and science. The act which your Excellency does to-day, which as I have said is almost the very last public act that your Excellency will perform in a country you have served so long, so faithfully, and so well, is one that will bear its fruits for many centuries. It is an act that may remind you that as this stone is but one in a building that will confer blessings on thousands, your whole life has been, as it were, a corner stone in the edifice of Indian civilization, conferring inestimable blessings on millions, a stone on which future builders may build without fear of ruin or change. It is my pleasing task, therefore, as representing my late father and on behalf of the Committee, to ask your Excellency before leaving these shores to lay the foundation stone of this Mechanics' Institute, and may the Almighty long spare your Excellency to hear of its fruits. (Applause.)

His Excellency replied as follows:—Mr. Sassoon, Mr. Chairman, and gentlemen of the Committee,—The address which you (Mr. Sassoon) have just read leaves very little for me to say beyond expressing my cordial concurrence in the noble sentiments it expresses and my sense of the great truths which you there state. When this building was first spoken of I was in hopes that your venerated father might have been present here to see the work actually begun, and that he would have been spared to see it well carried on towards its completion; but it is still some satisfaction under the circumstances to know that he is followed by those who so worthily represent him, and that the grateful remembrance of the people of Bombay will perpetuate in this building the revered memory of him whom we all admired and beloved. Under ordinary circumstances, Sir, I might have felt some scruple in beginning another work while there are so many on which we have bestowed time and labour still incomplete in this city; but I felt that those who were interested in carrying out this undertaking would not allow any obstacle to interfere with its completion, —that, on the contrary, they would steadily and in a way befitting good mechanics, carry to a completion a work which was wisely designed and well begun. And here, Sir, let me add my tribute to what you have said regarding the class for whose especial benefit this building was designed. I should have been sorry to have left India with nothing but lip testimony as to the respect which I feel for that class and the national pride which I feel in belonging to the same nation which sends so many of them forth. You have well said, Sir, that India requires the mechanics of England as well as her warriors and her statesmen, her economists and her administrators; and I believe it is because we find in the mechanics of England so many of the high qualities which we find in her warriors and statesmen that this is strictly and literally true. The same courage and the same devotion to duty, the same sense that all that belongs to pleasure is subordinate to duty, can be shown as well by the engineer on the plate of his engine or by the mechanic at his anvil as by the soldier in the breach or by the statesman in the closet. And, Sir, let me add my testimony, and the testimony of the Government to which I belong and which I serve, to what you have said with regard to Mr. George Berkley. He has left a monument of which the greatest of conquerors and the greatest of statesmen in former days might well have been proud; and he has left an enduring recollection of him in the minds of all who knew him personally, who knew his steady devotion to duty, and who saw that even considerations of health and wealth and life could not induce him to depart from duty. And I trust that his memory will long remain, not only perpetuated in the great works which he achieved, but embalmed in the recollections of those who know what an excellent example he was to the mechanics of every age and clime. I am glad too, Sir, that an opportunity is afforded me before I leave this country of seeing one of those buildings commenced which we have designed in the place of the old Ramparts of Bombay. Unluckily, Sir, you are not the first in this work, because our friend Mr. Crawford has stolen a march upon us by planting his standard on the Esplanade in the edifice (i. e. the new Municipal Market) which has sprung up so rapidly, which we lately saw so beautiful, and which contains so many examples of what is most peculiar in good mechanical engineering. But still, Sir, I hope that the edifice which will stand where we now stand will be the first, strictly speaking, of the buildings which replace the old Ramparts of Bombay. I do not say, Sir, that it will be the first of a new town to be built upon the Esplanade, for I trust that care will be taken that no new town should grow up here. I do not say this from any doubt of the people of Bombay or because I think there can be any question that sooner or later the whole of that magnificent design of Mr. Trubshawe will be carried out in its entirety. I believe, Sir, it is not only a very beautiful design in itself, but that it is a strictly practicable design; and I look forward to the time—though it may not be in my lifetime—when all those great public buildings which it is proposed to raise here, and that fringe of private buildings which was designed for each side of the wide boulevard, which were to replace the Ramparts of Bombay, will be literally carried out. I feel assured that the public spirit and the course of justice and the hospitals will all, one after the other, be built. But, Sir, I trust that care will be taken that nothing more is done on this Esplanade than to complete that which Nature and our ancestors have already provided for us. I trust, Sir, that the buildings which will grow up here will be an ornament to the Esplanade, but that the Esplanade itself will be preserved, embellished with gardens and adorned with beautiful buildings, and having good roads, and good places for walking and riding in, which the gentlemen and ladies of Bombay—and above all, the mechanics of Bombay—will take their healthful recreation and exercise;—that the Esplanade will continue to be the Esplanade, though adorned with fine buildings and beautiful gardens and fountains, and that it will remain as it now is, one of the great amenities of this city. And now, Sir, I will with great pleasure do your bidding in laying this the first stone of the Memoral Hall, and I trust that it will stand long a memorial of all the virtues of him who founded it, and whose name it bears, and of the high qualities which distinguish those for whose use it is intended. (Applause.)

His Excellency, on proceeding to lay the stone, first placed the bottle, containing a copy of each of the daily papers, with a specimen of each of the current coins, silver and copper, into the hole cut for it; and then, after desiring Captain Finch to read the inscription on the brass plate, placed it in its position over the bottle. H. E. the Governor then spread a coating of chunam, and the chief cornerstone (which is a large block of Coorla stone, 2'6" by 2'6" by 2' high) was lowered into its place, His Excellency saying—"I declare this foundation stone of the Sassoon Mechanics' Institute and Memorial Hall to be well and truly laid; and may God Almighty prosper the work to the benefit of all good and true-loving men, and of all those of the Indian Nations." On the ceremony being concluded, several hearty rounds of cheering were given, led in a most spirited manner by Mr. Manockjee Curseljee.

The brass plate on the stone bears the following inscription:—"The first stone of the David Sassoon Mechanics' Institute laid by His Excellency Sir Henry Bartle Edward Frere, G. C. S. I., K. C. B., Governor of Bombay, on the 21st day of February 1867: this building is erected from funds provided chiefly by David Sassoon, Esquire, in his will, to carry into effect the generous intentions of the donor, and generally to fit themselves for being better workmen and better citizens. That will be a proud day for England, and will perhaps repay her for the lives of all the precious sons she has sacrificed for India, when she sees, under her benign rule, not merely the creation, from among an acute but unskilled people, of a race of mechanics skilled in the methods of the West, but when she sees the mechanics of this country crowding in the thirsty pursuit of knowledge upon the footsteps of her own more intelligent and highly favoured working men. I think, Sir, that day lies in the future, and I therefore acknowledge with pride the prompt and generous support which your Excellency's Government and the Government of India gave to my late father's proposal to contribute Rs. 60,000 towards the erection of a Mechanics' Institute on condition of Government granting equal value. The amount so contributed has been increased by the balance of the sum subscribed by the public of Bombay to erect a memorial to my late father, and I cannot conceal the gratification it affords me to think that while his name is to be identified with this institute and his statue to be erected within its walls, the greater portion of the Memorial Fund will be applied to the extension and beautifying of the building and to the perfecting of the means of Education which it will provide. I am sure, Sir, had my father been spared to see the commencement of this building, he would have felt as I now feel, and as all the members of the Committee feel, that there was no hand more worthy to lay the foundation stone than that of Sir Bartle Frere. A career spent in noble well-doing like your Excellency's, in the promotion of every great and good work which will make the people of this country happier and better, and not the least in the anxious promotion of Universities and Schools, cannot be more fitly and nobly closed in India than by laying the foundation stone of a building which shall afford the means of instruction to the poorer classes of your own countrymen who come to these shores, and to every one, European or native, who desires to employ his leisure in refined amusement, or in the more severe study of literature and science. The act which your Excellency does to-day, which as I have said is almost the very last public act that your Excellency will perform in a country you have served so long, so faithfully, and so well, is one that will bear its fruits for many centuries. It is an act that may remind you that as this stone is but one in a building that will confer blessings on thousands, your whole life has been, as it were, a corner stone in the edifice of Indian civilization, conferring inestimable blessings on millions, a stone on which future builders may build without fear of ruin or change. It is my pleasing task, therefore, as representing my late father and on behalf of the Committee, to ask your Excellency before leaving these shores to lay the foundation stone of this Mechanics' Institute, and may the Almighty long spare your Excellency to hear of its fruits. (Applause.)

His Excellency replied as follows:—Mr. Sassoon, Mr. Chairman, and gentlemen of the Committee,—The address which you (Mr. Sassoon) have just read leaves very little for me to say beyond expressing my cordial concurrence in the noble sentiments it expresses and my sense of the great truths which you there state. When this building was first spoken of I was in hopes that your venerated father might have been present here to see the work actually begun, and that he would have been spared to see it well carried on towards its completion; but it is still some satisfaction under the circumstances to know that he is followed by those who so worthily represent him, and that the grateful remembrance of the people of Bombay will perpetuate in this building the revered memory of him whom we all admired and beloved. Under ordinary circumstances, Sir, I might have felt some scruple

FORT POLICE COURT.—22ND FEB.

THEFT.—Bhowani Babajee was charged with stealing a turban, worth twenty-five rupees, the property of Narayen Vassoo.

The prisoner pleaded guilty, and, being an old offender, was sentenced to four months' rigorous imprisonment in the County Jail.

IN the course of the day His Worship disposed of several cases, none of which possessed any public interest.

(BEFORE DOSABHOY FRAMJEE, ESQ.)

TWO OLD OFFENDERS.—Nundram Motseram and Sewlall Ramlall were charged with stealing a silver ornament, one coat, and Rs. 35-1-4 in cash, the property of Kessowjee Jeevan.

The evidence of the prosecutor was that, on the previous day he went inside his shop to serve a customer, leaving the property on a bench outside. When he returned he found the articles missing. He went on to the Esplanade, where he saw the prisoners, and on a cry being raised they were arrested by the police, with the things in the hands of one of them.

His Worship on the evidence before him convicted the prisoners and sentenced each to be imprisoned for three months in the County Jail with hard labour.

ASSAULT.—Syed Tar was charged with assaulting one Hajee Meera Latiff.

His Worship fined the prisoner ten rupees.

A REPUTED THIEF.—Syed Ally Hoossein, an old offender, was charged with stealing a fowl, the property of a Mussulman.

His Worship adjudged the prisoner guilty and sentenced him to receive twelve stripes.

MAZAGON POLICE COURT.—22ND FEB.

(BEFORE R. H. SHOWELL, ESQ.)

NOSE-CUTTING.—Shaik Ally Shaik Keffayet was charged with voluntarily causing grievous hurt to Bunnoo Bee, woman, by cutting her nose with a razor.

The statement of the prosecutrix was received.

The prisoner declined to cross-examine the prosecutrix, and the case was postponed for further evidence.

CORRESPONDENCE.

MR. ORD AND THE WESTERN INDIA FINANCE MEETING.

To the Editor of the Bombay Gazette.

SIR,—I have been much amused with the foot note you have attached to a "growl," which appears in your issue of the 16th instant, from a distinguished manager of an equally distinguished "Finance and Exchange Association."

Your explanation calls up forcibly to pleasant memory that immortal apology contained in a well-known novel of Captain Marryatt's in which the satiric midshipman apologizes for having asserted that a brother-officer is not "fit to carry guns to a bear," by publicly stating that he is "fit to carry guns to a bear."

The Bombay Press would do excellent service in bringing to the same prominent notice the proceedings or want of them, of many others of the officials of the Bombay "bubble" companies.

OBSERVER.

A CORRECTION.

To the Editor of the Bombay Gazette.

SIR,—In your local columns of this morning's issue I observe a paragraph relating to the nomination of wardens of the Cathedral of N. S. de Gloria, at Mazagon, but as there is an inaccuracy in the following passage, viz. "the suppression of the illegal nominations hitherto made in contravention of the regulations," I beg to rectify the error, in justice to the retiring wardens, viz. Messrs. J. J. Mendonça, M. E. DeSouza and others. The election of wardens is triennial, and accordingly a general meeting was held on Sunday last and new wardens elected. It was customary to elect only two new wardens, but on the present occasion, and with a view to put an end to the recent disgraceful squabbles, His Grace the Archbishop of Goa ordered the election of all four wardens, leaving the parishioners free to re-elect the retiring ones, if they chose. —Yours, &c. J. V. D'QUADROS.

THE BANK OF BOMBAY.

To the Editor of the Bombay Gazette.

SIR,—It has been brought to my notice that rumours are circulated that for certain reasons I have tendered my resignation of the appointment of Secretary and Treasurer to the Bank. I request you will do me the favour to contradict this report as there is not the least truth in it.—I am, &c.

JONH STUART.

Bank of Bombay, Bombay, 22nd February.

II.

To the Editor of the Bombay Gazette.

SIR,—Allow me to place a few facts through the medium of your columns before the public, especially that part of it that is interested directly or indirectly in the affairs of the Bank of Bombay.

I am informed, in fact I may say I know, that a considerable number of shares in the Imperial Banking and Trading Company, an unlimited joint company now being wound up under the supervision of the High Court, stand in the name of Mr. D. Maclean, the accountant or deputy accountant of the Bank of Bombay.

I am further informed, and again I may add that I know, that Mr. Maclean has no personal interest whatever in the shares in question, and that they were taken over by the Bank of Bombay in payment or reduction or otherwise on account of a debt due to the Bank, in short that Mr. Maclean has no beneficial right whatever to the shares, but that their proprietor to all intents and purposes is the Bank of Bombay, who had them placed in the name of their officer as they have done in dozens of other cases, simply as a matter of convenience.

The liabilities of the Banking and Trading Company are some sixteen or seventeen lacs of rupees and their list of contributories is to be applied to the Bank also. The liability of the Company being unlimited, the question of whether the Bank of Bombay is or is not by virtue of Mr. Maclean's shares to be included in the list of contributories, resolves into just this—Is the Bank of Bombay liable or not liable to pay sixteen or seventeen lacs of rupees on demand? The matter has formed the subject of some discussion in legal circles, and I understand that the received opinion is that, though the Bank of Bombay is not directly liable as a contributory, it most undoubtedly is liable to its nominee for any sum he may be compelled to pay by way of call. Assuming this to be law, it obviously becomes a matter of importance that Mr. Maclean should be anywhere but in Bombay and accordingly he has most opportunely had leave granted to him, and has proceeded to England (or elsewhere) by the last mail. Whether he will ever return, how long he will stay away, and where he has gone to are known of course to the Bank of Bombay. Relying on the advice they have obtained I suppose the Directors of the Bank of Bombay think that, so long as Mr. Maclean cannot be touched the Bank is safe; hence the second act in the drama which, to follow Professor Vanek's posters, I may call the "Mysterious Disappearance."

But seriously, Sir, is it possible that the Bank of Bombay can have descended to play this very questionable kind of game, and that they expect to profit by it? I cannot believe that a body of gentlemen, of men of ability and integrity, such as the Board consists of, can have allowed themselves to be persuaded into taking the steps I have referred to, for the purpose of evading a clear and direct moral, and a equally clear though indirect legal, obligation. However much they may reject the position in which they are placed, the fair, straightforward, and honourable course to take would be to meet their liability on the best terms obtainable. As it is they place it in the power of any one to compare the Bank of Bombay to Pestonjee Cursetjee Shroff—the single difference being that he keeps out of the way in person, they do the same vicariously.

I sincerely hope that I am misinformed as to Mr. Maclean's departure, but I fear it is too true. Of course we shall be told that he was very ill, that he went home on medical certificate; and that he was not sent away by the Bank, but went at his own request—this may be so, but in reply I would ask one or two questions—First, would Mr. Maclean have gone home if his evidence had been wanted in Court in favour of the Bank on the 27th? Was he so ill that ten days' additional stay in India would have been in any degree dangerous? Has he left any one in Bombay to act for him in the matter of those shares? What is his present address?

ANGLICAN MISSIONS.—No. II.

To the Editor of the Bombay Gazette.

SIR,—To continue the subject on which I addressed you, it is evident that, while you start with promises in which you agree with the Reviewer, you join issue with him mainly on this point, viz., in what form are we to present the Christianity we are teaching to a race rapidly advancing in education, with hopes that it may some day supersede the various effete religious systems of India. For I do not understand you to question the duty which rests upon us, as a Christian Church, in some form to spread the knowledge of the entrusted deposit of saving Truth, of which she claims to be "the pillar and the foundation." As she declares the simple testimony, "that God would have all men to be saved and come to the knowledge of His Truth," so is she bound with this view to carry out the plain injunctions of her Divine Founder, and "to make disciples of all nations" by baptism; and, then, having admitted them to this state of salvation, "to teach them to observe all things, which he has commanded,"—chiefly, of course, the commemoration of His Death, in the Holy Eucharist, the great bond of union between fellow Christians. Indeed, you lament as much as I can do, the want of earnestness and conviction shown by the English people as to proselytism and "that the missionaries are not backed up by the main body of Europeans," &c. The general indifference,—the undemonstrative form of our religious observances,—the utter antagonism of a cold repelling Protestantism to all that is congenial to devotional feeling, of a newly converted Hindoo;—the absence of all inducement to the native to become more Christian than the main body of Christians, by the sacrifice of his worldly interests;—the want of teachers alive to the spirit of the age, intellectually qualified, and duly trained for their special calling;—these you rightly mention, in accordance with the sentiments of the Reviewer, as among the chief causes which have impeded our progress, and which forbid any reasonable hope of better success, in this most discouraging field of missionary labour.

For this state of things, as I pointed out, three very opposite remedies are suggested:—

(a) If I refer for a moment to the school which Dr. Wilson represents, and to his remarks at a recent meeting of "the Bible Society," as represented in your paper of the 14th instant, it is because I cannot but feel that his experience, learning, and personal self-sacrifice, entitle his opinions to the greatest weight. The marvellous work, too, accomplished in Bengal by that true apostle of our days, Dr. Duff,—the fearless stand which he made against the arrogance of infidelity, the Christian character he gave to what was a great atheistic movement,—the evidence he afforded by his faith and energy, his erudition and eloquence, that the Gospel is not the ally of ignorance and error, or unable to vindicate its claims to reverence, but as ever is advancing in the van of civilization";—all combine to direct our attention to the views he expressed, and the methods he adopted for bringing the truths of Christianity to bear on the consciences of educated Hindoos—well might Bishop Cotton acknowledge this such a name, though it adorns not the Fasti of his own Church, is, indeed, entitled to honour in all the Churches." Of these leaders of Missions in the Church of Scotland, the former advocates as to best security for our ultimate success, a further extension—not of an organized Church, or Mission Colleges—but of Bibles printed in all the spoken languages in India. Doubtless there is much to be said in favour of this method, the value of which is supported by such testimony. Yet against it must be quoted the testimony of Dr. Duff, the most able of the supporter of Mission work, as to total failure of this system of evangelization. I can here only refer those who are most interested in the question, to the Bampton lectures of the Venerable Archdeacon Grant, page 231. It is remarkable that his opinions, the result of careful observation, are maintained by two very opposite schools of Theology, Cardinal Wiseman, in his "Lectures on the Church,—VI.," coinciding in the very terms, in which the report of 1824 is given in The Missionary published at Bishop's College, Calcutta, vol. ii. p. 225. He regrets "the total failure of the system of printing many copies of the authorized Scriptures." The same evidence confirms us in the belief of the failure of the method of issuing cheap tracts, and sending single preachers (pages 67 and 95.) To the same point is the argument of the chief of missionaries—who asks "How can men believe on Him of whom they have not heard, or how hear of Him without preachers commissioned to proclaim these glad tidings?" Not thus I fear can we, Christians, hope to supplement the efforts of Government, and the results of intellectual advancement, and material progress,—all which I fully believe to be among "the messengers to prepare the way of our God," by sweeping away what is vile of India's past, and absorbing into a holier future all that remains of beauty and greatness. No. "That the people of India may realize the grandeur of the vision, and be encouraged to receive Christ as their Lord and Saviour," some better organized system of missionary operations is needed than "the cheap and easy method of distributing the Scriptures, (which without an authorized interpreter must be to an inquiring mind most perplexing) or the reciting in the ear of a casual listener the scornful irony of Isaiah." Strongly convinced of this, I felt the greater satisfaction in perusing an article in the Friend of India from which I have quoted copious notes, on "A Protestant Propaganda;" which forcibly established the merits of the far-sighted measure proposed by Dr. Duff, to found in his own University a Mission College, and to endow a Missionary Professorship, towards which the liberality of a dozen Scotch merchants have already contributed £10,000. Now, Sir, in this we have the full weight of the authority of one best qualified by experience to judge wisely in favour of the very policy proposed by the Reviewer; but which you summarily reject because of the utter uselessness of ever expecting the "educated native Christianity as the missionaries inculcate it." The other means available for carrying out the great work of evangelizing India, besides the Mission College at home for training men intellectually qualified to grapple with the questions of the day by a wider and more fearless study of Theology, and by acquaintance into native literature and mode of thought, are,—if I understand the Reviewer aright,—(1) lectures to educated natives, such as I rejoice to find has been attempted in our own Cathedral in Bombay; (2) the education of their wives and mothers, a movement in which we find many enlightened Hindus deeply interested; (3) the bringing Christian worship directly before the natives by opening our Churches daily in the very midst of the native cities, and thus challenging attention and attracting those who would learn our faith; (4) the formation of a Brotherhood or Guild, which should welcome the new convert to the ranks of that society he would join, and to which he would transfer all the strong attachment of his nature;—and not least in importance, the establishment of (5) a Mission College in our Presidency, in which matriculated students of the University may be educated up to the B. A. standard under influences purely Christian; and I would ask if there is not much in these suggestions to commend itself to a thoughtful mind, which has become painfully convinced by personal observation of the failure of past efforts, and the need of adopting fresh measures to meet the requirements of the day? But is it not equally certain that Christian Missions will yet be barren, until we have a more centralized system,—more of the guiding mind to direct, and more of an organization, into which that guiding mind may pour itself with unity, force, and economy of power. It is such reflections that lead to the conclusion to which I referred before. (b) That true method, because it is the Scriptural method, of setting forth the Truth,—is by exhibiting it in a visible organization, in the spectacle of a united living Church: and this the Reviewer has ably, and I think, successfully, vindicated. There remains yet the theories of a third school to be considered. (c) Those, namely, which very plausibly you advocate for rendering Christianity acceptable to the educated Hindu and Mussulman. It is one I could never sanction, and it is one which carries with it its own consideration. "Before it can be received by our educated natives, we must," in your opinion, "divest Christianity of all that is miraculous, and permit the spirit of its founder to shine forth unobserved by the cloud which ignorance and bigotry have gathered round it." Missionaries must abandon favourite miracles and pet dogmas, and insist only on what educated persons, with the light of modern science shining on them, can believe" of a Divine Revelation? I cannot hold with you that this "to divest Christianity of all that is miraculous," even if this were possible, will be "to substitute a reasonable living faith for a hollow name." I doubt much whether a creed in which nothing is inculcated but what is within the province of men's finite reason to comprehend, and what men's f

Holloway's Ointment and Pills.—Diseases of the Skin.—No case of disease of the skin, be its nature what it may, has failed to be benefitted when these potent remedies have been properly applied. In scrofulous and scorbutic affections they are especially serviceable. Scurvy and eruptions which had resisted all other modes of treatment and gradually become worse from year to year have been completely cured by Holloway's cooling Ointment and purifying Pills, which root out the disease from the blood itself, and leave the constitution free from every morbid taint. In the nursery Holloway's Ointment should be ever at hand it will give ease in sprains, contusions, burns, scalds and infantile eruptions, and may always be safely applied by any ordinary attendant.
